ment and had gone on waiting. Then only that day, with the time-limit almost expired, he had got her telegram. It lay beside her letter in the desk. He knew the words by heart.

"You're right. It didn't wait for him a week ago."

Just that, and a request that she might come to see him that evening. Probably she was on her way now. Harvey pressed his fingers against his temples, his head throbbing. He could think, could reason. He knew he should be wildly happy, but he was not tired, oh, so very tired.

It was as though the strained tension of these past months had become so habitual that he no longer knew how to relax. He rubbed his forehead again but still that light band seemed to be pressing in on his temples. He tried to picture their meeting. Would she have changed, he wondered. He himself had aged years. Only the other day he had caught his old houseman looking at him with an expression of pity. Pity for him? The impudence of the fellow! But Leone, he must think of Leone. She would be ashamed and repentant, he knew, and probably humble at first. It would be up to him to assure her he realized she was justifying her actions in her own eyes, to forgive her completely and ungrudgingly.

So absorbed was Harvey in his thoughts that the muted ringing of the doorbell and the quiet footstep of the servant who answered it failed to pierce the shell of his abstraction. He rose to pour himself a drink, then steadied himself, one hand gripping the edge of his desk.

Leone was standing in the doorway. After all his waiting and listening he had after all failed to hear her come home. More beautiful than ever, her cheeks still flushed from the southern sun, she advanced to greet him. Harvey stared at her a chair without seeing her. Leone watched him with some concern, uncertain what to do or say. He had sunk back in his chair, staring at her as if he did not really see her.

"Forgive me, my dear," he finally managed to say. "The shock of seeing you suddenly like this—it really bowled me over."

But he felt he had said and said no more. He heard Leone speaking, but her voice seemed to come from far away. There was a ringing in his ears. It was almost as though he were inside one of those big glass bells they used to have in the laboratory at college. Vacuum bells. He supposed she was asking for forgiveness, and he tried to answer reassuringly but could find no words.

He groped in the drawer of his desk, took out a large clean handkerchief and mopped his forehead. That felt better. His head was cooler now and clearer. He could think. "He put the handkerchief back in the drawer, and his fingers touched the cold metal of a loaded revolver that lay there."

Suddenly he knew exactly what he must do. And at that moment the hand that had been tightening around his temples, seemed to break. "What a relief! He felt calm and rested in his mind. He stopped trembling."

Holding the handkerchief loosely in his hand, he rose and went to his door. He put his arm about her shoulders.

"This is my answer," said Doctor Harvey Gibbs. And his finger pressed the hard metal under the folds of the clean white handkerchief.

Private Places

Will Be So Compromised That They Will Disturb The Peace

Former General Doolittle's prediction that 400,000 private planes will be flying in the United States within five years is no doubt a sign of the aviation progress. Yet the average citizen is bound to wonder how much peace and quiet can be expected when such a goal is reached. The night and day drone of planes is already causing annoyance to householders living in the neighbourhood of airports. It is going to be like the noise of flying has become commonplace? Let us hope plane manufacturers are working on silencing devices to tone down the racket.—Baton Post.

EROSION PROBLEMS

Building Along Coast Of Britain Undermined By The Sea

Along the east coast and in Wales, the people of "vanishing Britain"—vanishing into the sea.

Erosion is a growing problem, and the people of the east coast of Britain saw sea-walls crumble from want of a penny and deep gulches cut by the waves in areas where protection could not be provided for want of labor and materials.

Now so much work must be done that municipalities contend they cannot finance it. Meetings are being held to urge the national government to accept responsibility. Pleasant coastal villages are waiting to be swallowed up, gradually, under the sea. Substantial buildings undermined by the sea, are doomed.

On the East Norfolk coast, facing the North Sea, the broken sections of a thick cliff half are half-buried in the sand below high-water mark. It is the top of a church's tower—last vestige of a sizeable village.

At Colchester, north of Yarmouth, pillboxes built for defence during the war have been toppled over. In 1943 the sea advanced 100 yards in six months. It is still advancing 10 feet a year.

A massive concrete sea-wall at Lowestoft, built some years ago, fell recently to east coast storms and now is undermined and useless. At Mundesley, Norfolk, a new cliff half tumbled down, outbalancing to the sea; and at Overstrand, near Cromer, houses and a hotel soon will disappear.

In the west, erosion is most serious in Wales, with the damage at Rhyl, Colwyn Bay and between Llandudno and Kildwilly River. The south coast, too, is a danger ground, points between Bexhill and Eastbourne, Newhaven and Brighton and Shoreham and Chichester.

Adequate defence is estimated to cost £100 million. The government of the worst stretches. Most small centres argue they cannot possibly provide the funds.

Hope For Large Pack

Canadians May Get Plenty Of Cannon Salami This Year

Canadians who like to eat enjoy nearly as much cannon salami as they do the pack. From the 1946 pack as they did from pre-war years, the Canadian Grocer, a report in a recent issue, says 500,000 cases of the 1946 pack, which is reported the domestic market. This represents an increase of 50 per cent over the amount Canadians got from last year's pack, when only 333,000 cases were available.

Canada's share of the 1946 pack, country for Canadian consumption. The year before it was 250,000 and in 1943, 200,000 cases.

Canadian Grocer points out that this is a "cyclical year for sockeye—The choicest variety of all. Packers are hoping for an unusually large catch of sockeye salmon in 1946 of this variety alone, while the total pack of all varieties may run to 1,000,000 cases.

If all goes well Canada will have a large export surplus for the hungry British Isles and for other sterling countries, as well as being able to stockpile sockeye for the home market. The pack is more completely than has been the case since early in the war.

Mouth Organs

Harmonicas Are Now Produced In Ontario Plant

Harmonicas labelled "Made in Canada" soon may be on sale in all parts of the world, the Trade Department said.

Before the war, Canadian mouth organ firms were dependent on the Holmer plant at Treasgreen, Germany, for their favorite musical instrument, but hostilities ended production. Three Ontario plants at Gannanora, Port Credit and Toronto, seized the opportunity to start a new post-war industry and began to manufacture harmonicas.

The production rate now is meeting domestic demand and soon there will be plenty for export, the department said. To facilitate overseas shipping, the Government has decided that export permits for most foreign countries will not be required.

Musko Sequel

Is Me To Be Next Fall In The Alaska Area

In line with the continental defence policies under study by the permanent joint defence board, Canadian officers will be on hand when large-scale American assaults to the Canadian Musko expedition are held next fall and winter in the Alaska area. Canadians will be present on both the Alaska and the Yukon fronts. The Willow in Alaska and full reports on Operation Frost in Wisconsin will be given to the Canadian general staff.

The words red tape, denoting official inaction or delay, originated in England in the 16th century when legal and official documents were tied in a pinkish tape.

PLENTY OF LAND

Available In Western Canada And Suitable For Homesteading

The land movement of 40 years ago, it is often said, can never be exactly duplicated, because farms are not to be obtained for the asking. It is true that most of the homesteaded land has been alienated and that a new movement of the people who wish to start farming on even terms with the men now established must buy their farm from a private owner. For the immigrants who are so inclined, however, there is still abundant opportunity for the pioneer. That is, there is still homesteaded land. None of it is a railway or shipping facilities. But there are lands for a newcomer to the West available for the asking. They are lands for a few years, he will be served by railway lines.—Clough Mercury.

Few Failures

Canada Now Shows A High Solvency In Business

An all-time peak for business solvency in Canada was established in 1945 with only 60 failures showing total liabilities of $1,960,000. These figures, from the records of Dun & Bradstreet, compare with a peak of 3,695 failures in 1922 showing aggregate liabilities of $78,089,000.

If the history of failures following the First Great War provides a forecast of events to come, Canada is heading into a rising tide of failures that will reach its low only after the current up-surge of business enthusiasm has been liquidated.

There has been a rash in recent months of "business wrecks" enterprises, chiefly by returned men, powered by their war service savings and government loans. Many of these new ventures will, it is predicted, fail by the wayside but there is a feeling that the percentage of business wrecks will not approach the figures recorded in the past years of 1918-23.

Not only are statistics dealing with supplies and markets now more readily available but the disasters of the year ago left a legacy of experience that is likely to curb the gambling factor.

Failure came fast about three years after the end of the First Great War. The total for 1921 was 2,451 and 1922 brought the record peak of 3,695. Then followed a slow decline until the stock market crash in 1929 and the depression that resulted.

Great Step Forward

Man Invents A Machine To Regulate Length Of Speech

A Chicago inventor with an eye to giving aid and comfort to suffering humanity has come up with a machine that regulates the length of addresses by after-dinner speakers.

This is a great step forward. It is to be fondly hoped that the gadget not only is foolproof, but that the inventor sets to work immediately on the mechanical additions or adjustments necessary to improve the quality of speeches. Most habitual listeners, however, would settle for an attachment to tune out at any time. New York Times Telegram.

A REAL RECORD

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. — Thirty-five men painted a new, five-room cottage in three minutes 13.2 seconds and claimed a world's speed record. An estimated 2,000 spectators cheered the men, all from painters local (A.P.), as they tackled the house whiff. The dwelling will be occupied by Joseph Valentine, a war veteran.

SELF-RELIANCE

Men always thought that one reason farm boys and girls are more self-reliant than boys from the towns is that they are "out there" on the farm that there are tasks which can only be accomplished by application and hard work. They have a training in work that stands them in good stead.

Town & District

Miss Peggy Bogie has joined the staff of the local telephone office.

R. Bluck, our enterprising moving picture man announces that a showing of the Lewis-Conn fight pictures will be shown on Friday and Saturday July 5th and 6th.

One slice of bread saved each day by each Canadian would provide sufficient to increase the daily ration of 900,000 hungry people by 1000 calories.

Mrs. C. Woods and children left last week for Donalda, Alberta, to visit relatives.

The work of putting up the brick and cement walls on the addition to Central Garage is about completed and soon the noise of carpenters' saws and hammers will announce the roof is being put on.

Mr. and Mrs. Moser of Edmonton spent a couple of days here the first part of the week visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Froggatt. They were en route to Calderbank, Saskatchewan. The two ladies are sisters.

Miss Louise McKay who has been on the telephone staff for the past couple of years has resigned her position and left for Calgary where she has accepted a position.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins wish to thank Mrs. Sutermeister for playing the wedding music, and the choir for rendering the hymn, "O Perfect Love," at the wedding of their daughter, Eileen, on Saturday, June 22nd.

The members of the U.F.W.A. met at the home of Mrs. A. N. McLeay recently for a quilling bee with a pot luck dinner. The quilt was to be taken to the Brooks Conference held on Saturday for handicraft exhibits and also to be sold for the Robert Gardiner fund. The members spent all day quilling and it was six o'clock before the work was finished.

Scotty Keir of Calgary accompanied by Mrs. E. Woods, Misses T. and B. Woods motored to Benfit and back on Sunday. While in Benfit they visited Mr. E. Woods who is taking the hot spring treatment for rheumatism. He will be home in about a week's time.

Bank Menard, Cam Evans and George Walker have gone into the circus business. To start with they have procured three young skunks and are having the time of their lives looking after them. The problem is to "deskunk" the animals before the town health authorities step in would be circus men.

During the past week good progress has been made in repairing the swimming pool. A couple of carloads of cinders arrived in town and was hauled by trucks to the pool site. The hole on the east side, made through repairing the cement wall, was filled with cinders. Now the earth adjoining the west side of the pool is being excavated in order to repair the cracked cement wall. When the repairs have been made the hole will also be filled with cinders. By putting cinders next to the cement it is thought that any leakage of water would be drained away and in the winter time would not freeze and expand thus cracking the walls out of place again. A few more days should see the pool opened for the season.

Meeting Place for Stampede Visitors

As a service to rural Albertans visiting the Calgary Stampede, United Grain Growers Ltd., in co-operation with the Hudson's Bay Company has arranged to set up a down town meeting place and lounge, where facilities will be free to farmers, their families and friends.

The meeting post will be located on the third floor of the Hudson's Bay Company store, 8th Ave. and 1st Street West, and will be open during store hours on the six days of Stampede Week, July 8 to 13.

It will include, as well as a comfortably furnished lounge, telephone service, a check room, writing facilities, personal shopping service and an information desk. All services will be free.

In view of the acute shortage of living space in Calgary, United Grain Growers Ltd., is unable to arrange hotel accommodation for farmers visiting the Stampede, and persons who wish sleeping quarters should write directly to the Accommodation Bureau, Calgary. Exhibition and Stampede However, it is hoped that the United Grain Growers' meeting place and lounge will provide adequate daytime accommodation for rural Albertans and their families, residents of the Gleichen district, are invited to make free use of the meeting place.

Plan For Survival In Peace

There seems to have been no grand ideas about the war. It was not "a war to end war." It was just "a war for survival"—to keep war from ending.

The Nazis, had they won, planned to obliterate the population of whole countries or reduce them to slave labor or a human stock farm. We had no plan except to survive and reduce the enemy's armaments.

We fought, of course, not just for the survival of people but the survival of our homes. Yet the war was followed by the greatest outbreak of hordes in history. Untouched by bombs in war, our homes are now being shattered by the most trivial forms of selfishness. Unless we revive our ideals of home, the home as an institution is not likely to survive the peace.

Industry too, united by war in the struggle to produce, seems likely to be shattered in the present peacetime struggle for industrial control. Unless we revive the spirit of team work, industry will be taken over by some bureaucracy of government or by dictatorships in management of labor. Business, as we know it, will not survive the peace.

Democracy as a whole may break up in peace unless we revive the willingness of men—the voluntary effort that distinguishes free people from totalitarian slave states. And, since voluntary effort springs from selfless leads, only to division and destruction, we must find again some selfless inspiration for our effort.

In war to fight for mere survival was perhaps enough. But today, in peace, we need a grander scheme. Our plan for survival now must be a plan of revival—a plan for mighty renaissance in the thinking and the living of our times. We must fight for the revival of the virtues and the values which would make the break up of our homes and the break-down of our industries undesirable. That means fighting for the will to live and work together. And to make this voluntary, not a matter of cold calculation or of force, we must fight for the revival of our faith in God and let him talk to us in our own hearts.

Every Canadian consumer can fight in the army of volunteers enlisting inflation and the black market in Canada. The fight is very important to every man, woman and child in Canada and victory means preservation of the purchasing power of the consumer and savings and the vastness gratuities as well as the prosperity of the country. No enforcement drive against the black market can succeed without the co-operation of the housewife and consumer and their persistent refusal to buy above ceilings or take rationing goods without surrendering coupons.
